Meeting Facilities

All ASV sessions, symposia, and activities will be held at The Classic Center. The Classic Center is northeast Georgia's premier award-winning convention center and performing arts theatre. Located in the heart of downtown Athens, Georgia, The Classic Center is within walking distance of hotels, restaurants, shopping, and entertainment venues. See classiccenter.com and asv.org/asv2023 for additional details.

Accommodations

On-campus residence hall rooms are available for conference participants. We have also reserved blocks of rooms at several hotels located in Downtown Athens, within walking distance of The Classic Center. See asv.org/asv2023 for additional details.

Registration opens December 2022 Abstracts are due February 2023

asv.org/asv2023

ASV membership and program content

Katherine R. Spindler, PhD Secretary-Treasurer, ASV University of Michigan Medical School (734) 764-9686 ASV@asv.org

Local host

S. Mark Tompkins, PhD
Department of Infectious Diseases
Center for Vaccines and Immunology
University of Georgia
(706) 542-4716
smt@uga.edu

Meeting venue and Athens, Georgia

Visit Athens 300 N. Thomas St. Athens, GA 30601 (706) 357-4430 or (800) 653-0603 visitathensga.com

ASV contact info:

asv@asv.org (734) 764.9686

Annual Meeting

American Society for Virology

June 24–28, 2023

University of Georgia and The Classic Center Athens, Georgia

The American Society of Virology invites you...

to attend the 42nd Annual Society Meeting, June 24-28, 2023 in Athens, Georgia. Hosted by the University of Georgia and held at The Classic Center, the scientific program will include symposia, concurrent workshops, poster sessions, exhibits, and special events. Professional development activities and social events will be interspersed throughout the meeting. Registration and abstract submission will open December 2022 with abstracts due February 2023.

The University of Georgia is the oldest state-chartered institution of higher education in the United States. Employing about 3,000 faculty members, UGA provides educational and research services to more than 37,000 individuals, including over 8,000 doctoral and professional students. Seventeen colleges offer doctoral degrees in 98 areas spanning the liberal arts and humanities; business; journalism; public affairs; law, education, and social work; and include science-based colleges for veterinary medicine, ecology (the first stand-alone college of its type in the world), public health, pharmacy, engineering, and agriculture. Among public universities, UGA has been one of the nation's top three producers of Rhodes Scholars over the past two decades and is also home to the Peabody Awards, the most prestigious prize in electronic media. One of America's "Public Ivies", Georgia's flagship university supports land- and sea-grant missions while tackling some of the world's grand challenges—from combating infectious disease and securing the world's food supply to advancing economic growth and analyzing the environment. Learn more at uga.edu.

Photo courtesy of University of Georgia Marketing and Communications

→ Athens, Georgia

Home to the University of Georgia, a storied music scene, critically-acclaimed restaurants, and a full range of can't-miss attractions, the Classic City is a vibrant college town immersed in Southern charm. The downtown and nearby neighborhoods are home to diverse restaurants, live music venues, craft breweries, and shopping, as well as outdoor recreation activities. The university is home to the Georgia Museum of Art and the State Botanical Garden of Georgia. Additional information on Athens and things to do in and around Athens is available at visitathensga.com.

Transportation

Athens is located in Northeast Georgia, just 61 miles northeast of Atlanta. Atlanta's Hartsfield-Jackson International Airport (ATL) is the busiest and most efficient airport in the world and, by some accounts, the best in North America, offering nonstop service to more than 150 domestic and 70 international destinations. From ATL, you may rent a car, or Athens is easily accessible via Groome Transportation, which operates 24 roundtrips daily. See asv.org/asv2023 for additional details.